THE INTELLIGENCER.
WHEELING, APRIL 13, 1900.

The Bounding West.

Ex-Mayor Schieren, of Brooklyn, has just returned from a two months' trip through the west, and while traveling through that section of the country, and being an observing man, he gathered much information as to the causes for Republican gains in the recent city and town elections. He also absorbed the public opinion of the west, which is entirely favorable to the Republican party.

He found the people everywhere "contented and optimistic," because they were never so prosperous. "The farmer has found a market for his products at prices seldom equaled in the country's history, the railroads have more than they can do to haul the products to market, and the merchant has found the farmer more anxious than he has been able to be in years to exchange some of the money obtained for his crops for the wares of the stores." Small wonder, in view of this prosperity, that "every man in the west is an expansionist," believing that prosperity has come with the new policy. Mr. Schieren says the people believe that McKinley is a safe man, that his administration has been a good thing for the country, and that as between him and Bryan they will vote for him by a larger majority than most folks imagine. He adds:

"While the west is strong for McKinley, there is one man that they swear by and absolutely believe in and for whom they would walk miles to vote, and that man is Theodore Roosevelt. The people of the west have faith in that man, in his absolute honesty, in his sincerity and his fearlessness as they have faith in probably no other man today. I was surprised at the feeling for Roosevelt all through the west."

There should be nothing surprising in this evidence of the popularity of a man who for years lived with the western people, whose boldness of action and simple honesty comes up to their ideal of a man, and who fought with the sons of the prairies in Cuba, and fought as well as they did. But this news will alarm the anti-imperialists of Boston, and we shall not be surprised in hearing Erving Winslow and Edward Atkinson taking steps to counteract the fatuity of the "misguided and emotional" West.

Commerce of the Lakes.

The treasury bureau of statistics has just presented in one of its monthly publications some very interesting features of the commerce of the Great Lakes, where navigation is about to resume for the season of 1900. The commerce carried on these inland seas shows a most wonderful development of our domestic trade.

A growth in our foreign commerce from $1,000,000,000 in 1872 to $2,000,000,000 in 1900 is remarkable, and an increase of our exports from $444,000,000 in 1872 to $1,227,000,000 in 1899 is even more striking, but this growth is insignificant when compared with the growth of commerce on the Great Lakes as measured by the few available measuring rods which the present rather unsatisfactory statistical system furnishes. Yet the fact that navigation on the lakes is about to open and that the greatest "season" ever known is confidently predicted by those familiar with the traffic there makes some facts collected by the bureau of statistics interesting.

The single point at which accurate statistical statements have been kept during a considerable term of years is at St. Mary's Falls Canal, which connects Lake Superior with Michigan, Huron, Erie and Ontario; and by a study of these figures it is practicable to compare in some degree the growth of internal commerce on the Great Lakes with that of our foreign commerce. An already indicated, the foreign commerce of the United States has doubled since 1872 and the exports have trebled during that period. During the same time the tonnage of vessels engaged in commerce passing through the St. Mary's Falls canal increased from 914,735 registered tons in 1872 to 21,958,247 tons in 1899 the increase having been over 2,000 per cent, as against an increase of 100 per cent in total foreign commerce and 200 per cent in exports.

The great articles entering into the commerce on the lakes are wheat, flour and other grains; coal, iron and lumber. The statements of the quantities of these articles passing through the "Roe" canal illustrate the growing utilization of this great water route for transportation of these articles so readily transported in bulk. In 1871 the number of bushels of wheat passing through the canal was 1,376,705, while in 1899 the number of bushels was 58,297,325, or more than forty times as much as in 1871. Meantime the receipts of wheat at Buffalo increased from 14,000,000 bushels in 1872 to 83,000,000 in 1898, while the total receipts of grain of all kinds (including wheat in the form of flour) received at Buffalo by lake increased from 22,000,000 bushels in 1872 to 277,000,000 bushels in 1898. Meanwhile the exportation of wheat and wheat flour increased from 39,000,000 bushels in 1872 to 292,000,000 bushels in 1899, the increase in transportation by lake thus being much greater proportionately than the increase in exports from the sea board. Transportation of flour through the "Roe" canal has increased with even greater rapidity, growing from 136,411 barrels in 1872 to 7,114,147 barrels in 1899, while grain other than wheat increased from 445,774 bushels in 1872 to 30,000,000 bushels in 1899.

One Crank on Another.

Carl Browne, who will be remembered as one of the Lieutenants of General Coxey's Commonweal army that marched on to Washington during Cleveland's first administration and were ordered "off the grass," is now making speeches out west on questions of national importance, with special reference to the trusts. His remarks betray gleams of sanity only when he deals with Colonel Bryan and his remarkable beliefs. In the course of a recent address at Kansas City, on "Trusts and How to Deal With Them," he read an interview with Mr. Bryan which was published in a Chicago paper, in which the perpetual candidate had aired his pet scheme to have all trusts prohibited from doing business unless they were licensed to do so by the federal government.

"Now what does that mean?" said Mr. Browne. "It simply means that if you have a mad dog and will pay a license to let it go at large, that it is all right. Imagine Wendell Phillips, if you can, standing up in Faneuil hall, Boston, exclaiming: 'If these slave-holders will only pay a license for the privilege of holding slaves, why that will be all right.'"

Further on in his remarks the speaker said: "The trusts cannot be regulated by law. They must be allowed to continue, else the constitution must be amended, and if that is done in the manner proposed in some quarters, then the same amendment will open the door for Congress to fix the price at which a farmer must sell his wheat and a day laborer his services—and you get in deeper water."

The refunding scheme appears to be a pronounced success, if we may judge from the following, which appeared in the Washington correspondence of the New York Journal of Commerce: "The receipt of bonds at the treasury to-day for exchange into the new 2 per cent bonds was about $2,250,000. The receipts are still running at the rate of several millions per day, and the total thus far presented has been $23,920,800. Secretary Gage and Treasurer Roberts are greatly gratified with the complete success of the refunding project and believe that nearly all of the bank bonds will be received for refunding within another month of two."

Representative Joseph Sibley, who now represents the Twenty-seventh Pennsylvania district in Congress, having been elected as a Silver Democrat, is now the Republican nominee for election to the next Congress. Prosperity and the adoption of the gold standard and the fetich worship of Bryan knocked all the Democracy out of Col. Sibley.

So far as legislative nominations have been made in Pennsylvania, the Quakers have suffered a loss of fifteen, compared with their strength in the last legislature. Counting the Democratic districts the same as before the nominations for the next legislature stand as follows: Quakers, 32; anti-Quakers, 20; Democrats, 20.

What's this! Has the seed sown by Prof. McGiffert and Pastor Hills taken root? A New York Presbytery has just elected a delegate to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church, who is commissioned to ask for the formulation of "a short and simple creed that would be acceptable to the church."

So many have spoken for Judge Henry Clay Caldwell, of Arkansas, that he thought it was time to make a few remarks himself, and as a consequence he has emphatically declared that under no circumstances will he be a candidate for the Democratic vice presidential nomination.

It was somewhat of a coincidence that the Puerto Rican tariff bill should have been passed on the first anniversary of the President's peace proclamation, declaring the war between this country and Spain at an end.

Representative Dakin described the Democrats in the house of representatives well enough to be recognized by their most intimate friends when he characterized them as "scribes, Pharisees and hypocrites."

There are two serious objections to ex-Governor Pattison, of Pennsylvania, as a running mate for Bryan. Have the promoters of his candidacy forgotten his gold standard and expansion convictions?

Judging from the number of men in Kentucky who have been accused of firing the shot that killed Goebel, it is singular that all the firing proceeded from one spot.

After all that has happened ex-Consul "Runaway" Macrum has had the temerity to talk again. This time he accuses the state department of falsehood.

The "Middle-of-the-Road" Populists threaten to take up Dewey. This is almost as severe as the "blow that killed father."

It is now up to some fool friends of Admiral Selby to bring him out as a presidential possibility.

Up to April 7 the British casualties in South Africa have amounted to 23,000.

There does not appear to be any "open door" for Dewey.

The Admiral of the Navy should get on his "sea legs" again.

April is sadly out of tune with the season.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

Coffee is like the earth—when its ground.

Troubles are like babies; they grow larger by nursing.

A girl never truly loves a man if she admits he has faults.

The longest period in the life of a small boy is that between meals.

There are many kinds of foolishness, but the meanest kind is selfishness.

It's all well enough to believe in fate providing you act as if you didn't.

It is always a trying moment for a woman when her dress comes home from the modiste.

When a man tells a woman a joke he usually has to follow it up with an explanation.

Many a self-made man might be happier if he could blame the job on somebody else.

A woman's idea of a congenial husband is one who lets her have her own way in everything.

A man who is supposed to know says that marriage without love is like tripe without onions.

When some men get up in the world everybody appears small to them—and they appear small to everybody.

There are many different occupations in the world, but every man, woman and child grows older at the same time.—Chicago News.

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR.

The only way to get a woman to be quiet is to let her talk.

Distance is the only chaperone worth anything, and you sometimes get fooled in that.

When a woman is really happy she is either terribly in love or else terribly free from it.

Women have the best of it; a man may not have room in the house for a dog, but his wife can always manage to keep a rubber plant.

You can always tell which kind of cake a woman thinks is the best by noticing which she says she made herself and which she says she let the girl try.—New York Press.

Mrs. Dewey's Religion.

Correspondence Chicago Record: It appears that Mrs. Dewey has been in the habit of changing her religion. She was born and brought up in the Presbyterian church and remained a member of that communion until after the death of her first husband, Gen. Hazen. Then she joined the Episcopal church, and belonged to St. John's parish. Next she became interested in theosophy and joined a society for the study of occult science, until converted to Catholicism through the influence of Mrs. Bellamy Storer, the wife of our minister to Spain, and Archbishop Keane, while the latter was director of the Catholic university at Washington. She has since been a communicant at St. Paul's Catholic church and was married by Father MacKie, its pastor. When the term for which she had rented her pew at St. Paul's church expired last month, Father MacKie called upon her and found that she was undergoing a change of heart. He endeavored to persuade her to adhere to the faith, but she gave him little encouragement, and did not renew his subscription. Nobody observed her absence from St. Paul's, or at least it attracted no comment until a few days ago, when it was noticed that she was attending the Lenten lectures at St. John's Episcopal church with her husband, where he is a member of the vestry. In answer to inquiries Mrs. Dewey informed her friends that she had decided to return to the Episcopal faith, and yesterday she was elected one of the trustees of the Episcopal cathedral foundation, of which Mrs. Phoebe A. Hearst is president. Mrs. Dewey declines to discuss the subject and the admiral frankly informs the public that his wife's religion is nobody's business.

Moving Shade Trees.

C. J. Lamb, writing to the Michigan Farmer in reply to an inquiry about ways of moving shade trees, says: "The way I do is to root-prune a year in advance, if the trees are large, say from two to six inches in diameter, and twenty or more feet in height. Select your trees this spring, and as soon as the frost is out of the ground, cut all the main roots a foot or eighteen inches from the stump. Mark your trees and let them stand one year. In which time masses of small roots will grow close to the stump. These small roots will make it quite easy for the tree to live, and less top trimming is required than where the trees are not thus root-pruned in advance. In this way large shade trees may be quite easily and safely transplanted with a very much smaller percentage of loss, and trees may be made almost sure to grow and give good shade in three or four years. Otherwise, if small trees be transplanted, it takes many years to recure the shade."

A Hint of Spring.

There's a lazy time a-comin'—
And it's comin' purty soon;
I'll get a start in April
And I'll keep it up through June.

The sun'll come a-streakin'—
Cross the valleys and the hills,
With the warm 'n' light a-drivin'—
Out the shivers and the chills.

I'll loaf around the gardens
And I'll roost among the trees,
A-coatin' and persuadin'—
With a mighty power to please.

Till the earth will be in color,
With the roses all in bloom,
And the leaves in leaf and water,
Joyin' of the beam.

I'll catch a feller workin'—
In the house or in the doors,
And I'll start the feller feelin'—
Oatin' out of all his pores.

I'll make the eyelids heavy,
I'll set his brain on dreams
Of the cool and shady places
By the quiet runnin' streams.

Then's the time to go a-fishin'—
For the lazy time is best,
'Cause a fish ain't hardly human,
And it never wants to rest.

By the ripplin' of the waters,
Makin' music all the day,
He can stretch out where his shady,
And jest fish his life away.

It's the sunshine time, the fishing time,
The lazy time that's best,
When the leaves don't want a-thinkin'—
But to soak his soul in rest.

The Golf Girl

Is the type of the modern woman at her healthiest and best. She walks with an easy grace. She is a picture of perfect womanhood in the springtime of life. But generally the golf club is laid aside with marriage. A physical languor oppresses the once athletic girl. Exercise makes her back ache. She tires easily. Usually she accepts this condition as a natural thing, but it is unnatural. Marriage should add to woman's happiness, rather than subtract from it. If women understood how intimately the general health is related to the local health of the womanly organs, they would appreciate the fact that there is no need to suffer from weakness and backache. The use of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong, sick women well. It regulates the periods, heals inflammation and ulceration, cures female weakness, and puts the body in a condition of sound health.

Mrs. H. A. Alsbrook, of Austin, Los Angeles, Cal., writes: "After five months of great suffering with female weakness I write for the benefit of other sufferers from the same affliction. I doctored with our family physician without any good results, so my husband urged me to try Dr. Pierce's medicine—which I did, with wonderful results. I am completely cured. I took four bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, four of his 'Golden Medical Discovery' and two vials of his 'Pleasant Pellets.'"
Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation and its consequences.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedial. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

OFFICIAL CALL.

First District Republican Congressional and Delegate Conventions.

The Republican voters of the First Congressional District are hereby notified that a convention for the purpose of nominating a candidate to represent the said district in the Congress of the United States, to be voted for at the ensuing election, will be held at Weston, W. Va., Wednesday, June 6, 1900, beginning at 1 o'clock p. m.

Also a convention for the purpose of selecting two delegates and two alternates to represent the said district in the National Republican Convention, to be held at Philadelphia, Pa., to nominate a candidate for President and Vice President, to be voted for at the ensuing presidential election, will be held at Clarksburg, W. Va., Monday, May 7, 1900, beginning at 8 o'clock p. m.

The basis of representation, to prevent confusion, will be the same as that for the state nominating convention, to-wit: One vote for every one hundred votes cast for G. W. Atkinson for governor in 1896. And one for every fraction of one hundred over fifty.

County committees are requested to provide for the selection of delegates to each of said conventions.
